Non-contacting body-temperature measurement for small animals. We propose a non-contacting body-temperature measurement system for small animals using infrared thermography. Body temperature of a small animal was measured by comparing its infrared image taken with a camera. A logarithm of the ratio of the reflected intensity of the animal image to the background was calculated from the difference of the animal and the background intensity. The proposed method was examined using a rabbit. Its body temperature was measured by using the emitted light from an infrared light-emitting diode. The temperature sensor was fixed on the rabbit's rectum. The results were compared to other measurements such as a rectal probe and a rectal thermometer. The correlation coefficient was 0.99 and the difference of the average absolute difference between the measurements was 5.0 degrees C. How Do You Test For Erosion Of Foam Padding? Written by alan herbert Share Tweet Share Email Foam padding on exercise equipment is an important part of keeping users safe. Foam is a fire retardant and should be in the area of a home where there is potential for fire. Foam padding provides another layer of protection for people who may stumble or fall on the equipment. Foam padding should be tested regularly to make sure that it remains effective and is not damaged by the machines on which it is used. Other People Are Reading Proving How Fungible Foam Is Foam padding is easy to prove in a lab. Foam material has an EPA-designated substance that can be used to show that it is dangerous if it comes into contact with people. This testing can be done at the manufacturer's testing facility or by the EPA. Exposed Foam Exposed foam padding should be removed immediately. This is particularly important with military equipment, which can be wiped down with a high-powered jet of water to remove any foreign objects. Foam Padding on a Machine Exercise machines should be tested with a flame after they have been used. Plastic, foam and metal can all hold fire, and can pose a danger if a foam or plastic layer should come in contact with metal. Test the machine's foam by igniting the foam with a torch and recording the results. Internal Foam Exercise machines should be tested for fire damage to the foam within the machine. Nicola Sturgeon has joined a growing list of Lib Dem MP's to have her Westminster seat removed from the Lib Dems in order to fight independence. Aberdeen South East MP (The SNP's Jo Swinson) along with two other former Lib Dem MPs will now be up against the Scottish National Party in a hotly-contested Glasgow South West seat. A longstanding Labour seat, previously held by former First Minister and SNP leader Alex Salmond (the current First Minister Nicola Sturgeon's predecessor as the leader of the SNP), Glasgow South West was one of the seats that the Lib Dems fought hard for in the 2015 General Election. The Scottish party had hoped to gain the seat, but lost to the SNP. (Edinburgh South) Peat Marwick Hare and Co's chief economist told Business Insider that Scottish independence is a big win for the SNP. "The SNP has essentially won a majority of the constituency of Glasgow South West. This is the holy grail of the Scottish Nationalist party - regaining a majority of Scotland's parliament (in Holyrood) after being comfortably outvoted by the SNP in 2011. It would not only mean the SNP winning Scotland's second seat in the House of Commons - but also the SNP's majority for the Scottish parliament and effectively ending 44 years of Labour rule." Voters will head to the polls in the 4th December election, having voted a confidence motion on Theresa May's Brexit plans, after the June 2016 referendum.Q: How to make a CSS "Skeleton" So basically I'd like to make a Skeleton for some CSS I made because I just want a basic 2 part skeleton for an example (dont care what's inside them).
